COMING AND GOING

Herbert Paulin and family have removed to Patmos.

Mr. and Mrs. Silvio Russettto were in Youngstown Tuesday afternoon.

Perry Rhodes of Jackson township was a Canfield visitor last Saturday afternoon.

W. L. McConnell and three little sons of Mineral Ridge were Canfield visitors Tuesday.

Mrs. R. J. Crockett, who spent the winter in southern California, arrived home last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Howard of North Jackson spent last Saturday here with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Rose.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Dutterer and James Reed and family spent Tuesday evening in Rootstown.

Carl Liddle, who has been in the east for some months, has returned home to remain for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Swope and child of Warren spent last Sunday here with W. C. Raine and family.

Miss Effie Hake, clerk in the post-office, was confined to her home several days this week, suffering with tonsillitis.

Misses Helen and Winifred Butler of Youngstown are spending a week here with their grandmother, Mrs. Emily Shingfield.

Mrs. L. D. Van Fossan of Lisbon spent last Saturday night and Sunday here with her daughter, Mrs. F. A. Morris, and family.

Floyd Loveland of Youngstown, who recently returned from overseas, visited here Wednesday afternoon with M. H. Liddle and family.

Wilbur Wilson was among the Canfield boys of the 332nd infantry who landed in New York Monday after seeing much service in Italy.

Prof. W. L. Richey of Coitsville, former district school superintendent in this territory, was in Canfield Thursday afternoon calling on old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Amy arrived home last Saturday from Cleveland where they spent the winter with their daughter, Mrs. B. E. Coe, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Merle Minter drove to New Wilmington, Pa., last Friday afternoon to spend the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Minter.

Mrs. E. A. Flisk and little daughter returned home to Ashtabula last Saturday evening after a short visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Graves, west of the village.

Dr. and Mrs. D. Campbell, who spent several weeks in Miami, Fla., arrived home Wednesday evening. The Doctor's health improved considerably during his sojourn in the south.

Ross O'Rourke of West Austintown was in Canfield Tuesday afternoon. Fifteen years ago Mr. O'Rourke was local Erie station agent but has long been engaged in the road building business and has done well.

Lester Cox and Otto Sanzenbacher, who recently returned from France with the 37th Division, received their discharge at Camp Sherman and arrived home the latter part of last week. Both are looking fine.

Mrs. Ella Bingham of Warren visited here the past week at the home of her brother, J. A. Flick. Mrs. Bingham resided in La Mesa, Cal., for quite a number of years but since the death of her husband has decided to remain in Ohio.

L. B. Curtis, formerly of Canfield, who has been with the Garrettsville Telephone Co. the past year and a half, resigned his position to accept a more desirable one with a telephone company in Adrian, Mich. For the present his family will remain in Garrettsville.

Dr. Edwin Lee, a Canfield boy who has for a good many years been at the head of the Science department of Allegheny College in Meadville, Pa., has suffered a nervous breakdown and been forced to give up all work. The Doctor's numerous friends hope that his affliction will be only temporary and that he will soon be himself again.

J. N. Spanable and R. R. Spanable, father and son, of East Palestine called at the Dispatch office while in town Tuesday. They are extensively engaged in the greenhouse business and contemplate considerable expansion when their plant is removed to a recently purchased tract of land near Columbiana. The senior member of the firm a quarter of a century ago was employed at the Calla greenhouses and has done well since engaging in business on his own account.

SEEDS A CENT A PIECE.

They're From Ginseng Thought and Are Mighty Scarce.

Ginseng seeds are worth from one cent apiece or from eighty to one hundred dollars a pound. Dried root is worth $6.25 a pound.

When first growing from the seed the ginseng plants have two forks or stalks and one leaf on each stalk. The second year it adds another leaf on each part and the third year the plant grows in three parts with three leaves on each part and this year a seed ball forms.

This grows direct from the main stalk of the plant and from four to five inches above the foliage. The average plant, says the writer in Outing, produces from fifty to sixty seeds and sometimes goes as high as 100 seeds. Wild plants yield better than cultivated.

The fourth and fifth years one leaf is added to each stalk. The fifth year the plant is full grown, having three forks and five leaves on each stalk. It grows from one to two feet in height; some times as high as twenty-seven inches. The leaves are broad and flat, about four inches long and two inches wide when full grown with scalloped edges.

It takes five years to grow the root from seed for market and eighteen months to germinate the seed for growth. There is more cultivated root now on the market than wild. The plants are found on high, dry land in the woods and never in swampy places.

Nearly every square seems to have its founders.

A LUCKY RECOLLECTION.

Experiment is one of the best aids to teaching, for the average man is more certain of a thing which he has tried himself. A case in point is that mentioned by the Philadelphia Bulletin. A man was working on the side of a steeply sloping roof, when suddenly his foot slipped on a patch of ice, and he began to slide slowly down toward the edge.

As he slid he clutched with tense fingers at the tin. But it was smooth. It offered him no hold. And his speed gradually but surely increased. As he lay a sitting posture, like a tobogganist, the man continued his deadly slide, he began to pray in a loud, anguished voice.

Memory, as if in answer to his prayer, flashed across his brain the words, "Spread out."

The man instantly lay flat on his back, spreading arms and legs to their widest angle, making himself as much as possible like a starfish.

His speed at once decreased. The additional friction surface acted like a brake. A few feet from the edge of the roof he came to anchor.

"Help!" he then shouted. But the slight movement of shouting acted like a push, and he slipped down a few inches more.

"Help!" And again he slid a little. But this time help came, a rope was thrown, and the man climbed back to safety. He wiped the dew of terror from his brow.

"My boss in my apprentice days," he said, "told me if I ever started sliding down a roof slope to spread out and it would stop me. I didn't believe him, but he was right."

The man smiled and sighed, musing on his long-dead "boss." Then he crawled back to his dangerous work on the steep slope of the roof.

THE WIDE, WIDE WORLD.

Beasts, having twice as many feet as birds, have learned to apply them to many uses, says an article in the Strand Magazine. They dig with them, hold down their food with them, fondle their children with them, paw their friends, and scratch their enemies.

One does more of one thing and another of another, and the feet soon show the effects of the occupation, the claws first, then the muscles, and even the bones dwindling by disuse, or waxing strong and stout. Then the joy of doing what it can do well.

The bear is a very serviceable tool and weapon, armed with claws which will take the face off a man or grub up a root with equal ease. When the black bear has found an ant hill it takes but a few minutes to tear up the hard cemented clay and lay the deep galleries bare; then, putting its gutta-percha muzzle to the mouth of each, it draws such a blast of air through them that the industrious laborers are sucked into its gullet in drifts.

Afterwards it digs right down to the royal chamber, licks up the bloated queen, and goes its way. But the bear is like a signpost at the parting of the ways. If you compare a brown bear with the black Indian, or sloth bear, as it is sometimes called, you may detect a small but significant difference. When the former walks, its claws are lifted, so that their points do not touch the ground. Why? I have no information, but I know that it is not content with a vegetarian diet, like its black relative, but hankers after sheep and goats, and I guess that its numerous thoughts flow down its nerves to those keen claws.

PUTTING ALL ON NATURE.

One reads in the ordinary text books of physiology about the various organs of the body and the remarkably delicate work they accomplish; but as to the power that sets all this machinery in motion no information is vouchsafed and no curiosity is evinced. It used to be taken for granted or ascribed to a female goddess called "Nature." This poetic ascription may have been a justifiable form of words in the days which science really did not know; but now when the spiritual nature of man has been discovered, or rediscovered, a system which treats of the body and ignores the intelligence to which the body owes its existence is in danger of becoming like a theory of literature that should ignore the author and deal only with the printing press.—Rev. Percy Dearmer in Body and Soul.

REMINISCENT.

Mr. Jefferson had not been altogether an exemplary husband and father, but he possessed certain engaging qualities which secured him many friends and made his death the cause of sincere mourning to his widow.

"Miss Jefferson, she's done broke up over Ebenezer's being took on 'arm pneumonia," said one of the neighbors.

"She surely is," said another. "Ebenezer" round de house all de time, she goes. Why, day befo' yist'day I was ter helpin' her, an' she sho' stop cryin' once, and dat was to spunk little Eben for takin' m'lasses out'n de jug right into his mouf, when her back was turned.

"When she spanked him good an' set him down, she say to me, 'He makes me tink ob pa so much, I want hear it' and bust right out cryin' ag'in."—Youth's Companion.

A dose of mother-in-law will often get a sick man out of bed when all else fails.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy The great benefit derived from the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been gratefully acknowledged by many. Mrs. Benjamin F. Blakeney, Decatur, Ill., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is by far the best medicine for colds and coughs we have ever used in our family. I gave it to my children when small for croup and
